LANCASTER, N. H., Feb. 15, 1895.

In the past year we have settled five suits which were against the town, viz: The two Glines suits, Hickey suit, Whitcomb suit, and the indictment on the Victor Leavitt road. This leaves the town free from all lawsuits at the present time.

Respectfully submitted,

R. H. CHESSMAN, W. H. HARTLEY, T. S. ELLIS, } Selectmen of Lancaster.

LANCASTER, N. H., Feb. 18, 1895.

We, the undersigned, auditors of the town of Lancaster, having carefully examined the accounts of the selectmen of said town, find them correct, and properly and satisfactorily vouched for.

EDWARD R. KENT, BURLEIGH ROBERTS, } Auditors.

Sewer Survey.

Committee on Sewerage.

GENTLEMEN :—I herewith present some facts and recommendations in regard to the sewerage system for the town of Lancaster.

A careful survey of the village has been made, and accurate levels taken on all the streets. This survey has been made on all streets as far as there seemed to be any possibility of building for a number of years to come, and on most streets until they sloped in the opposite direction from the village. The object of going to this limit was to obtain the necessary information to so plan the system that it would be of sufficient capacity to properly dispose of all sewage ever likely to enter it.

From the levels and measurements taken, plans and profiles have been made, showing what is possible and most feasible to be done.

The profile of Main street shows, that beginning at the northerly end, at the junction of North Main and Bridge streets, it is almost level to Railroad street, a distance of about 1,000 feet. From this point it rises slightly to a point about half-way between Bunker Hill and Middle streets where it is six and one-half feet higher than at Railroad street. From the point midway between Bunker Hill and Middle streets there is a drop of a little more than half-a-foot to the bridge at Israel's river. The latter point is therefore a little less than six feet higher than Railroad street.

The general inclination is thus to the north. South of Israel's river Main street is a little lower than on the north side.

Some of the streets leading from the east side of Main street, such as High, Bunker Hill, and Mechanic, rise from the former at a good inclination, while others, such as North Main and Railroad are much flatter. These streets connect with Summer street, which has somewhat the same general direction as Main street. Summer street, north of Cemetery street, is of about the same elevation as the northerly end of Main street.

The fact that Summer street is so nearly at the level of Main street increases the cost of the system by making the system by making the cut in Main street deeper than it would be if Summer street were a greater height above Main street.

It will probably be best to make two outlets or points of discharge, one for the territory north of Israel's river and one for that south of the river.

For the south side the point of discharge would probably be near the Concord & Montreal railroad bridge into the Isreal's river. The sewage would be brought together on Water street and carried by a 12-inch pipe to the point of discharge just mentioned.

If the town should ever desire to purify the sewage before it entered the river, there is apparently excellent land for the purpose, at a suitable elevation, on the north of the C. & M. railroad and west of Israel's river.

For the north side two points of discharge are possible. One into the Connecticut river near the entrance of Indian brook, and another into the Israel's river five or six hundred feet below the bridge above referred to.

The points in favor of the first are, that it would make the system about $400 cheaper. Second, the sewage would be discharged into a larger and deeper body of water. Third, the sewage is discharged at two widely separated points, practically into two different streams, and so is more diffused.

One point in favor of discharging the north side into Israel's river might be that in case the sewage were ever purified by filtration through the soil, as before mentioned, it probably could be carried across the Israel's river and be utilized upon the land before referred to.

I present plans showing both point of discharge for the north side.

As to there being any nuisance caused by the discharge of the sewerage of Lancaster at either of the points mentioned, I cannot do better than to quote from a letter just received from Mr. W. C. Eaton of Ware, Mass. Ware had, in 1890, a population of 7,300, which has increased considerably since that time. In 1889 a separate system of sewers was built, having two points of discharge into the Ware river. Water works had been built in 1886. Having in mind the effect at Lancaster from the discharge at the points proposed, I wrote to Mr. Eaton, who at the time the sewers were built, as chairman of the board of road commissioners, had charge of their construction, asking him as to the facts. In his letter of reply Mr. Eaton speaks as follows; "Yours of the 20th inst. at hand. I had just taken the pains to go to the outlet of our sewers to learn their condition and workings. The water in the river is very low now, one foot below the bottom of the pipe at the outlet, and you cannot perceive from the smell that there is any sewer there, until within a few feet of the end and then nothing more then you would notice from any sink drain back of a house not using sewers. There is no odor that I could notice one rod away from the bank of the river and but little sewage noticable in the water a few feet away from the outlet. In fact the water ten rods below the outlet is as clear as that above that comes down from the mills.

"The weather we have been having (very hot, F. L. F.,) is a good time to test the sewers, as to there being odor enough from them to make a nuisance to anyone in the near neighborhood, and I cannot see how any fault can be found with them in this respect. We have just been flushing them out and they are all in the best of condition. I wish you could see them for yourself and I think you would be surprised to find so little odor along the line or at the outlet.

"One reason why there is so little trouble from a small pipe sewer system is that the sewerage reaches the point of discharge within perhaps an hour after it leaves the house, and has had no time to decompose and is still in a fresh state."

The maps herewith presented show the sizes of the sewer proposed and the arrows show the course of the sewage from any point to the point of discharge. The profiles show the depth of the sewer below the surface of the street. This is not great, except on Main street. The manholes are placed about 300 feet apart and allow an inspection of the sewer at frequent intervals, in case of obstruction at any point. They also afford excellent means of flushing by introducing a length of hose, one end of which is attached to a hydrant. They are provided with an iron cover, generally having preforations to allow ventilation.

The system proposed, is what is known as the "Separate System," so called because the house is kept entirely separate from the street or surface drainage. The advantage of this is evident on a little reflection. The house drainage is almost constant, and of very small quantity, compared with the sudden downpour of a heavy shower.

Now, to have a system of sewers large enough to carry off all the water falling, not only upon the street, but upon the land draining toward the street, from the roofs of houses, etc., requires pipes and brick sewers so large, that the ordinary flow of house sewage is spread out so thin upon the bottom of these large sewers that the flow is sluggish and there is not depth of water enough to perfectly float the solid particles. The result is a deposit of the heavier portions of the sewage and an obstruction begins to form. This detains the sewage on its way to the outlet, and gives time for decomposition to begin, and the formation of sewer gases, which are both disagreeable and dangerous.

The secret of the perfect working of a system of sewers is to have the size of the pipes well proportionsd to the amount of sewage to be carried, to have smooth, straight pipes, laid on the best inclination that can be obtained, with man-holes for access and observation at proper intervals. With such a system, flushing does its work to great advantage, because the force of water is retained in a small pipe, and its force and scouring effect are not lost and dissipated over a large area. In the small pipe system a small amount of flushing will be sufficient. In the large, or combined sewers, flushing is hardly practicable, on account of the large amount of water required to produce any effect.

The advantages enumerated above have been aimed at in the system here presented for your acceptance. The difference between such a system and the so-called "combine system," especially in a small town or village, is almost the difference between success and failure, to say nothing of the great difference in cost. It has been estimated that the combined system, or that carrying both house sewage and the rainfall, or surface drainage, costs from three to eight times as much as the separate system.

The amount of sewage that would half fill a six-inch pipe and cause a flow of 147 feet per minute would run only three quarters of an inch deep in a fifteen inch sewer and have a velocity of only 83 feet per minute. This illustrates the comparative efficiency of small and large pipes. The small pipe system has depth and velocity of flow sufficient to keep the pipes clean, the other only a sluggish, almost intermittent flow, with foul pipes, because there is no scouring effect. The fluctuations of the day and night flow, expose a much larger area of pipe surface to the air, in the case of the large pipe, and this alternate wetting and drying adds still further to the deposite upon the sides of the pipe.

In the combined system there must be numerous inlets from the street, and with every rain more or less sand and road material is carried into the catch basins, and finds its way to the sewer. This of course has a tendency to impede the flow.

The functions of the two systems are so entirely different, that a combination of them does not give satisfactory results.

The present existing sewers, can to a certain extent, be used for surface drainage, but the present practice of allowing house sewage to enter these drains should be at once stopped.

As now arranged, if I understand it correctly, the drainage from water closets and sinks collects in open well holes, or depressions below the sewer level, there to stagnate and breed disease, and to comtaminate both the soil below and the air above.

Such a condition is a menace to the reputation Lancaster has for healthfulness.

The present time is extremely favorable for doing such work, prices for both labor and material being very low. The sonner such an improvement is begun the sooner the town will have the benefits which it will bring.

The estimate sheet gives each street in detail, giving the size and length of pipe required, and the cost, with the exception of the man-holes, of the sewer in each street. For convenience, the cost of man-holes is given in one item.

My thanks are due the committee for their kindness, and to Mr. H. A. Wilcox, my assistant, for the careful manner in which he had done the work entrusted to him.

Respectfully submitted,

F. L. Fuller, Civil Engineer.

153 man-holes at $50,	7,650
Rock excavation (estimated)	600
Rubble, masonry, bulk-head and appurtenances at two outlets,	600
Add 15 per cent. for contingencies and engineering.	6,236
	$47,809

The above figures are based upon the plan for draining Summer street and vicinity via Kilkenny street, and discharging all the sewage of the North side, except Canal street into the Connecticut river via the line down Indian brook, from North Main street.

The sewage of the North side (except Canal street) may be discharged into Israel's river at a point about two hundred yards below the C. & M. R. R. bridge, by an outlet sewer from the intersection of Main and Railroad streets, across Webb's meadow to the river. The changes in grades, etc. are shown by the plans and profiles.

This plan would increase the estimate by $437 bringing the total cost up to $48,246.

LANCASTER, N. H., Feb. 15, 1895.

On procuring the Survey plan, as directed by vote of the town, we did not feel authorized to proceed with the work as the appropriation made by the town was not sufficient to complete the system in accordance with Mr. Fuller's plan and estimates.

Respectfully submitted,

R. H. CHESSMAN,
W. H. HARTLEY,
T. S. ELLIS,
} Selectmen of Lancaster.

Report on Macadam Streets and Sewers.

LANCASTER, N. H., Feb. 13, 1895.

To the Selectmen of the Town of Lancaster the undersigned submits the following report:

I have received from the town eight hundred and forty-seven dollars and twenty-nine cents ($847.29). This has been expended as follows:

Sewers, Prospect and Elm streets	$313 21
Macadam, etc.	385 75
Sidewalks, grading Prospect street	50 00
Repairs, rock crusher, wood, etc.	50 15
Personal services	48 18
Total	$847 29

I have laid on Prospect street 685 feet of 12-inch pipe, and 200 feet of 10-inch pipe, and constructed seven catch basins and nine connections for abutting owners. I have laid on Baker Hill (Elm street) 136 feet 6-inch pipe.

I have made macadam roads on the hills (Elm and Portland streets) 1,486 yards, graded and widened the road on Prospect street, and have graded the sidewalk six feet in width for a distance of 989 feet. The cost of the macadam road is 28 1-2 cents per yard; the stone was furnished and hauled by contract with W. G. Baker at a cost of $133.05: I have paid for labor $1.50 per day; for team work $3.00 per day; of the incidental expenses $38.34 was for a new set of plates for the crusher, the old ones being worn out.

I herewith endorse an itemized account and vouchers.

J. I. Williams, Agent.

Report of Board of Health.

To the Selectmen:

Gentlemen:—The town has been remarkably free from infectious diseases, especially from those caused by filth and improper sanitary conditions, during the past year.

No cases of diphtheria or scarlet fever have been reported to us, nor has a single instance of either occurred, so far as we know.

There have been a few cases of typhoid fever, not all, however, have originated in town. Two cases, which we investigated, in one family were caused by pollution of the water used for drinking purposes. The source was a shallow well in the cellar, which received a portion of the sewage from the kitchen sink by reason of a defective drain a few feet distant from the well. It is common knowledge that water pollution is one of the most frequent causes of typhoid fever and oftentimes, as in this instance, sickness could be avoided by ordinary care and observation.

The means for the proper disposal of sewage in many parts of the village is inadequate and imperfect, but we trust that the plans which have been submitted for a modern and complete system of sewerage will be adopted and the necessary appropriations made for its construction.

We find, on inspection of the graded school building, that the general sanitary conditions are good with the exception of entire lack of ventilation of the closets. The ventilation of the school-rooms, although not ample, would be sufficient with particular care of those in charge, were the rooms not overcrowded. We find in one room 96 pupils out of a total attendance of 256 at this building. We consider the accommodations insufficient and recommend that more room be provided.

The importance of having well-ventilated, pleasant, light and attractive school-rooms for all cannot be over-estimated, especially for those occupied by the youngest children.

For many reasons, which may properly be discussed from a hygienic standpoint, we think it would be conducive to their physical and mental development if the younger children were confined to the school-room less hours each day or had a less number of consecutive weeks' attendance. Is it consistent to require of children seven to ten years of age the same number of hours' confinement that is required of the youths twice that age?

J. E. McIntire, Treasurer.

Lancaster, N. H., Feb. 20, 1895.

We, the undersigned, auditors of the Town School District of Lancaster, N. H., have this day examined the accounts of J. E. McIntire, Treasurer, and find them correct.

J. D. Howe, J. S. Peavey, } Auditors.

The schools in the town district during the past year have, as a general thing, been very successful.

We think that the parents of the scholars could add very much to the value of our schools by occasional visits, showing their interest in the progress and deportment of the scholars.

If the teacher can have the united support of the parents in these respects, it will add great efficiency to her efforts, and if the scholars realize that parents, as well as teacher, hold them responsible for progress and deportment, and are interested in their success, they, as well as the school, will be benefited.

Building the school-house in what was formerly District No. 3, differences in opinion in regard to location and opposition to enlargement of the school lot where located, together with the fact that some of our teachers accepted a better situation just before the time our schools were to commence, largely increased the labors of the school board and made the expense considerably more than it otherwise would be.

Respectfully submitted,

G. A. Marshall, Elwyn Goodale, J. E. McIntire, } School Board Town District.
